

Bulgarian People May Resist Declaration of War

MUST REPLY TO RUSSIAN NOTE TODAY

BULGARS' ANSWER TO SLAV ULTIMATUM MAY CONFORM TO INTERIOR PRESSURE FOR NEUTRALITY.

GREECE TO AID ALLIES

Greece Will Stand by Serbia in Case of Bulgarian Attack and Act in Junction With Allied Forces Now in Greece.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

London, Oct. 4.—Bulgaria must make her choice today for an open alliance with the Central powers and Turkey, or for neutrality. When her decision will be made known publicly, it is expected that there will be delay in satisfying the wide spread anxiety to know the best or the worst.

Bulgars May Not Fight.

There is a marked division of opinion in London as to which side King Ferdinand and Premier Radoslawoff will choose. Notwithstanding the signs of hostility towards Serbia on the part of Bulgaria, the opinion is expressed by some well-informed diplomats that Bulgaria will not fight and that even should the government expect to resist such a policy. In the meantime, Sofia continues to deny the existence of the military contentions which the Russian ultimatum is said to have provoked. However, will be decided by the action which Bulgaria will take in reply to the Russian ultimatum.

GERMANY'S DESIRE TO HARVEST EGYPT'S COTTON CROP EXPLAINS THE PROPOSED TEUTON DRIVE THROUGH SERBIA AND BULGARIA

Map showing probable route of Teutons through Serbia, Bulgaria and Turkey to Egypt. Below in circle—Enver Pasha, premier of Turkey. Above—King Ferdinand of Bulgaria.

Germany must have cotton for domestic consumption and for the manufacture of ammunition. As the American market has been denied her by the British fleet, it is said on the best of authority that she now plans a drive through hostile Serbia, friendly Bulgaria and Turkey, and thence to Egypt, where a big cotton crop is to be harvested. The heavy black line indicates the probable route of the Teutonic army which is now knocking at the gates of Serbia, in its long march to capture the cotton of Egypt.

SUBMARINE FLEET ON A LONG CRUISE

Four Submersibles Leave San Francisco Under Own Power, Bound for Honolulu.

San Francisco, Oct. 4.—The United States submarines K-4, K-7, and K-8 were proceeding today under their own power for the naval station at Honolulu, T. H., 2,200 miles distant. They completed without aid the voyage begun at San Francisco yesterday. A new long distance record for United States submarines, it is said, will have been set. Ten days will be required for the trip. The cruiser Maryland, naval collier Nashua, tug, Ironclad, and torpedo boat destroyer Lawrence, are acting as convoys.

The K. submarines will replace the F. group which was withdrawn from service following the sinking of the F-4 off Honolulu last March. The F. submarines will be towed to Mare Island navy yards from Honolulu.

CONCENTRATE BULGAR ARMY

Paris, Oct. 4.—Concentration of the Bulgarian army has begun, according to dispatches from Athens under yesterday's date to Havas News agency. The correspondent asserts he has authoritative information to this effect. The total effective of the Bulgarian army engaged in this movement are estimated at 350,000.

Deny German Predominance. Sofia, via London (delayed in transmission), Oct. 4.—Formal denial that German officers have taken control of military affairs in Bulgaria and that Germany is supplying the country with funds, are contained in an official statement through the Bulgarian news agency.

Friendly to German Envoys. Berlin, wireless to Sayville, Oct. 4.—The Frankfurter Zeitung announces that King Ferdinand of Bulgaria placed his private railroad car at the disposal of the German ambassador to Turkey, Baron Hans von Wangenheim, on the trip to Constantinople, says the Overseas News agency. The royal car was also put at the service of Prince Ernst von Hohenlohe-Langenburg on his return through Turkey and Bulgaria to Berlin.

Baron Wangenheim, who is now returning to his post at Constantinople, has been absent on account of illness since last July. Prince von Hohenlohe-Langenburg has been serving as acting ambassador.

Albanian Troops Active. Vienna, via London, Oct. 4.—The Neues Wiener Journal has reported from Sofia that Albanian troops have occupied Elbasan, sixty-four miles southeast of Scutari, after defeating forces under Esad Pasha.

The reference to "Albanian troops" is somewhat difficult of explanation, as there is no established Albanian government, although Italy virtually claims control of the country since the war began. Previous dispatches have reported that forces under command of Esad Pasha, former provisional president of Albania, were fighting with Mitridates, members of an Albanian tribe. It is possible the Mitridates may be the troops who have occupied Elbasan.

GAIN FOR GERMANS AT LOOS REPORTED

Berlin Announces Progress Made in Fight Against British—French Take Trench in Arras.

Berlin, Oct. 4.—A further gain for the Germans in the struggle with the British near Loos was reported today by the war office. The French succeeded in wresting from the Germans part of a trench near Sivechev.

Explain British Success. London, Oct. 4.—Explaining the reasons for the recent British success against the Germans in the region of Lens, the official statement issued today by the German army headquarters staff says:

It was not by any soldierly qualities of the English attack, but by a successful surprise and by a gas attack.

French Claim Progress. Paris, Oct. 4.—French troops have continued to make progress to the north of Arras, according to announcement given out by the French war office.

GERMAN SEAPORT AIR BOMB TARGET

Five Allied Bombers Rain Seventy-five Pound Bombs on Zeebrugge in Belgium Yesterday.

Amsterdam, Oct. 4.—The Telegraf announced that five aeroplanes of the allied forces yesterday bombed Zeebrugge on the Belgian coast. Some of the bombs which were dropped weighed seventy-five pounds. The aeroplanes were attacked by anti-aircraft guns which brought down one machine.

Another was compelled by a defective motor to land on Dutch territory. A British officer was interned.

FIND NO TRACE OF "OLYMPIAN" ROBBERS

Police and Railroad Detectives Search for Men Who Held Up St. Paul Coast Train.

Minneapolis, Oct. 4.—Twin City police and railroad detectives continued their search today for the two men who late last night robbed the passenger train in the observation car of the C. & N. St. P. coast train, the "Olympian," near here, and as the train slowed down the cut-throats of Minneapolis, escaped, amid showers of bullets fired by passengers. The robbers secured about $250 in cash. They took no jewelry.

INVESTIGATE DEATH OF ROCK ISLAND MAN

Body of Retired Merchant Is Found on Bathing Beach at Santa Monica, California.

Santa Monica, Cal., Oct. 4.—City and county officials are investigating today the death of G. A. McDonald, a retired merchant of Rock Island, Ill., whose body was found on the beach a short distance north of here last Friday.

Investigation was made late last night by Dr. W. H. Carl of Los Angeles, a nephew.

According to Dr. Carl, Mr. McDonald quietly carried large sums of money and wore a large diamond ring.

STRIKERS STORM WINDY CITY SHOP

Police With Drawn Clubs Route Mob Which Collects and Tries to Picket Garment Concern.

Chicago, Oct. 4.—Two hundred striking garment workers collected in front of the Continental Tailoring Company's shop today, and in many instances attempted to dissuade employees from going to work. Several arrests resulted.

Police brandishing their clubs made two arrests and scattered the crowd.

LAWRENCE QUARTERBACK WILL REJOIN HIS TEAM

Appleton, Oct. 4.—A telegram received today from Edman, the Lawrence quarterback, who left last week for Arkansas, stated he will return to school and will join the team, enroute to Ann Arbor, Friday.

NO EXCUSE NOW FOR NOT ATTENDING CHURCH

Oshkosh, Oct. 4.—The Rev. J. S. Budlong came to Oshkosh from Minneapolis, Minn., to give his first address yesterday. He said he would charge the hour of service to eleven o'clock to overcome the threadbare excuse of men who say they want to sleep Sunday mornings.

CITY ICE COMPANY EMPLOYEES ENJOY FISH DINNER SUNDAY

President Sam Tall of the City Ice company was host at a fish dinner for the employees of his company and a few invited friends at the Dog and Cat Club, Sunday.

Covers were laid for twenty-two and a most delicious meal was served at two o'clock under the direction of Harry Van Gilder, steward of the club. The party went from the city by automobile.

POLICEMEN FORCED SALOON MEN TO AID IN ELECTION FUND

New Evidence Given By Liquor Men In Indianapolis Election Fraud Trial.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Indianapolis, Oct. 4.—Saloonkeepers testified that policemen drove patrons from their places just before election of Sept. 3, 1914, until they made contribution to the democratic campaign fund, when the trial of Mayor Joseph E. Bell, charged with election conspiracy, started on its fifth week.

Harry Brown, colored, testified he contributed $25 to Lewis Lash and James Hagarty, and that they said: "This will be turned over to Mayor Bell, and he will then decide which saloon men he will take care of." Hagarty is custodian of the city hall and a co-defendant.

JEWELS WORTH $5,000 MISSING FROM HOME

Private Detectives Unable to Find Clue of Property Owned By Mrs. James McMillan.

Manchester, Mass., Oct. 4.—The state and local police were asked today to assist in the investigation of the disappearance of August 7 last of jewels said to be worth $5,000 from the summer home of Mrs. James McMillan, widow of United States Senator McMillan of Michigan, James L. Hall, attorney for Mrs. McMillan, said the case had been in the hands of private detectives since the loss of the jewels was discovered.

The robbery is said to have taken place on the night of August 7.

RECEIVES INJURIES BY AUTO IN OSHKOSH

Jury Gives Damages to the Amount of $4,200 to Man Injured by Interurban Car.

Oshkosh, Oct. 4.—Charles Draheim, who was knocked down by an automobile Saturday night, had one leg fractured and two places besides being bruised. He was dragged ten feet.

The jury in circuit court which awarded Benjamin C. Schneider $4,200 damages against the Wisconsin Traction Light, Heat & Power company, reached its decision in forty-two minutes.

A similar case will be tried in the same court of which the plaintiff is A. M. Frederick, who says he was injured by the same amount Schneider asked for. Both men were injured when an interurban car and a Northwestern train met at a crossing at Neenah.

RATES DISCUSSED BY THE DIRECTORS

Directors Take Up Question "Made in Janesville Week"—Other Business Transacted.

The discussion of the traffic committee report made to the Commercial club directors last week, occupied much of the time at today's meeting, and Chairman of the committee, A. S. Gibson, of that committee, was present to more fully explain the benefits to be derived from the co-operation with other cities of southern Wisconsin in a rearrangement of the present railroad freight classification.

He pointed out that sufficient tonnage in less than carload lots was received and saving of some $15,000 a year to the entire on freight rates. A motion to join with Madison and Beloit in the movement was carried and a sum of $500 is to be devoted as Janesville's share of the expense in presenting the case. The traffic committee have been employed to take charge of the matter.

The retailers' committee, Chairman Amos Rehberg, brought up the matter of a manufacturers' "Made in Janesville" week in connection with the establishment of the retail salesmen by vote decided to hold a week-long exhibition and several manufacturers present signified their intention of taking part. The Made in Janesville week was one of the most successful events in the history of the city.

The public meeting committee, J. H. Jones, chairman, are preparing for the club's public supper and will meet together for a program with some interesting speakers from outside the city on live wire subjects.

More complete information will be given later.

U. S. UNABLE TO APPROVE ARABIC NOTE

GERMANY'S REPLY ON SUBMARINE CASE FOUND TO BE ENTIRELY UNSATISFACTORY.

REFUSE A DISAVOWAL

Negotiations Will Be Continued to Secure American Terms, Disavowing Act and Promising Reparation.

Washington, Oct. 4.—The note presented by Count Von Bernstorff, German ambassador, to Secretary Lansing in New York Saturday, regarding the sinking of the steamer Arabic, with loss of American lives, is unsatisfactory to the United States, because of Germany's failure to disavow the act. Negotiations, however, will be continued through the ambassador, with a view to having Germany not only disavow the act, but assume responsibility and liable, and make reparation.

Germany refuses to give to the United States a disavowal of the act of its submarine commander in sinking the Arabic, but is willing to negotiate a settlement of this, as well as the Lusitania case.

This, the substance of Berlin's latest communication to Washington on the submarine controversy, was learned in official circles today following a conference between President Wilson and Secretary of State Lansing.

Chief Features of Note. The principal features of the German reply are in substance the following:

The testimony submitted by the state department to the effect that there was no hostile intent on the part of the captain of the submarine commander, who was convinced that he was about to be attacked. The testimony offered by the United States does not prove that the submarine commander was unjustified in believing that the Arabic changed its course with the design of ramming the liner.

In view of the conflicting testimony, however, the German government is willing to submit to arbitration the question of justification and liability. Germany will not accept assurances that submarines will not torpedo liners without warning and without providing for the safety of non-combatants.

Delivered in New York. This reply by Berlin to the latest representations made by President Wilson, was delivered by Count von Bernstorff, German ambassador to State Lansing in New York.

Mr. Lansing arrived in Washington Sunday morning and submitted the memorandum to the president at their conference late Sunday afternoon. They discussed the matter for fifteen minutes.

The German attitude is not only unsatisfactory to the administration, but is also a source of concern to those spokesmen of the president who are depicting him in a warlike mood and circulating reports that he had disavowed the sinking of the Arabic and assurances to non-combatants on freight vessels as well as liners.

The reply has shattered his hopes of another "diplomatic victory."

Danger of further trouble with Germany over the submarine question is believed to be growing more remote daily, however. This is not because the president has succeeded in inducing Germany to accede to his demands to comply with international law. Germany has promised to exempt from submarine attack only liners and certain freight steamers flying the American flag.

If the reports the Germans have lost fifty submarines are true, it is unlikely that Germany will be in a position to resume submarine operations on a large scale for several months.

The apparent abandonment of the submarine campaign relieves anxiety concerning the safety of Americans traveling through the administration at a disadvantage in effecting a settlement of the Arabic and Lusitania cases.

While the continued sacrifice of American lives was fanning American resentment, the president was backed up by a strong public opinion.

FULL DINNER PAILS SAVED NINE MINERS

Miners Rescued From Cave-in Are in Good Health After Being Six Days Under Earth.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Lanford, Pa., Oct. 4.—The six men and three boys rescued yesterday after having been imprisoned for more than six days in the Coal Dale mine of the Lanthorn Coal & Navigation company, were in good condition today and all expected to be able to go to their homes in a few days.

The fact that the accident occurred before noon, rather than in the afternoon, is given as one of the principal reasons why the men were found alive. Their dinner pails were full, and they were able to get sufficient nourishment for four out of the six days.

RESINOL BEGINS TO HEAL SICK SKINS AT ONCE

You don't have to WONDER if Resinol Ointment is doing you good. You KNOW it is, because the first application relieves the itching and your tortured skin feels cool and comfortable at last. Why don't YOU try this easy Resinol way to heal eczema or similar skin eruption? Resinol clears away pimples, too, and is a valuable household remedy for cuts, sores, burns, chaffs, etc. It has been prescribed by doctors for 20 years and contains nothing to injure the tenderest skin. Sold by all druggists.

HOW TO KEEP BABY'S SKIN WELL

The regular use of Resinol Soap is usually enough to prevent those distressing rashes and chaffings to which most babies are subject. This is so, first, because Resinol Soap is absolutely pure and free from harsh alkali, and second, because it contains the Resinol medication, on which so many physicians rely for skin troubles.

CATTLE IN DEMAND; HOG TRADE IS SLOW

Steers Sell at Higher Average. This Morning While Hogs Have Sluggish Trade.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Chicago, Oct. 4.—There was a brisk demand for cattle at the opening of today's market with steers selling at $10.30 or high mark, and the average generally higher than Saturday.

Hogs were slow with quotations five cents higher. Sheep demand was slow with no sign of improvement.

Following is the summary of the market conditions:

Cattle—Receipts 16,000; market strong. Texas steers 8.00@10.30; calves 8.00@8.30; cows 7.75@8.50.

UNIQUE FLY CHASER

Receives Several Direct From Egypt—Most Elaborate Affairs—Does Not Kill Insects.

When George S. Parker returned from his Egyptian visit a year ago he brought with him several specimens of real, genuine Egyptian fly-chasers. Do not mistake them for "fly-waters," they are too delicate for that.

So much interest was expressed that he sent for several others which have just arrived. They are most elaborate affairs made of fine strands of palm or bamboo and the handle is of hard wood with tiny shells as a decoration and a neat loop to hang it up by. It is used merely to chase the flies away—not kill them. A specimen is hanging in the window of the Gazette editorial rooms where it can be seen.

DRAWS CROWDS

Mme. Olga Petrova, the Wonderful Dramatic Actress, Plays to Big House at Myers Theatre Last Night.

Crowds saw Mme. Olga Petrova, the famous stage star, in a return engagement at the Heart of a Painted Woman at Myers Theatre yesterday afternoon and evening.

"The Heart of a Painted Woman" is a wonderfully strong dramatic picture, and Mme. Petrova many opportunities to prove the scope of her unusual dramatic ability.

This picture was released on the Metro program, and as usual was much better than the average picture features.

LESS MEAT IF BACK AND KIDNEYS HURT

Take a Glass of Salts to Flush Kidneys if Bladder Bothers You—Drink Lots of Water.

Eating meat regularly eventually produces kidney trouble in some form or other, says a well-known authority, because the uric acid in meat excites the kidneys, they become overworked; get sluggish; clog up and cause all sorts of distress, particularly backache and misery in the kidney region; rheumatic twinges, severe headaches, acid stomach, constipation, torpid liver, sleeplessness, bladder and urinary irritation.

The moment your back hurts or kidneys aren't acting right, or if bladder bothers you, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good pharmacy, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine.

This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity; also to neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts cannot injure anyone; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to keep the kidneys and urinary organs clean, thus avoiding serious kidney disease.

Orfordville News

Orfordville, Wis., Oct. 2.—Myrtle Granawalt who has been clerking at Allen and Allen's store for the past year or more has resigned her position to accept one as book keeper for Hazley Bros. of Janesville. She will assume her new duties on Monday.

The Light company have decided to rebuild the cement foundation to their engine. This will require several days during which the generator will be run by a large traction engine which they have procured.

The choir of the Luther Valley church held an ice cream social on Friday evening at the home of the pastor, Rev. Ivar Rasmussen. There was a good attendance and a most excellent time is reported. The Luther Valley was present and furnished choice music.

The ditching machine has been taken down and loaded upon the cars. The taking down required the labor of about a dozen men for four or five days.

Will Tomlin of Evansville was in the village for a short time on Friday evening attending the annual meeting of the Light company.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Reeder of Clinton visited with Mr. Reeder's brother Ed and family the latter part of the week.

Miss Cora Osgard was happily surprised on Friday evening by a party of her young friends who came to her home to inform her that she was the birthday girl.

The evening was spent in the playing of games and in social intercourse. Dainty refreshments were served from the well filled baskets of the visitors and later, all departed wishing the hostess "many happy returns of the day."

Edgerton News

MADISON ELEVEN WINS FROM EDGERTON HIGHS.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Edgerton, Oct. 4.—The local high school team, defeated in Saturday's game the score being 11 to 0 in favor of Madison. The game was by far the best ever played in Edgerton and a goodly crowd was present to witness the contest.

Madison team was much heavier than the home team and used its superior weight to good advantage all through the game, making most of their gains through Edgerton's line.

Edgerton outplayed the visitors in real football and had the victory they would have easily won a week or two ago.

The visitors would have easily won a third or fourth play and about every time for some unknown cause to give their players a chance to get their wind and then would rush through the center for a short gain.

However, it was not until the last quarter that Madison was able to make a score.

When interviewed after the game one of the Madison players said "Madison has nothing to brag of in this game and when it comes to good, clean football Edgerton can deliver the goods."

City Mail Delivery Service. As previously announced, patrons of this Post Office desiring to receive the benefit of city delivery service must provide some means for the receipt of mail matter, either by the erection of a receptacle or by cutting a slot in the front door, this to be done in advance of the time set for the delivery service to begin operation.

Authority to establish the city delivery service may be withdrawn or its institution postponed if this requirement is not met.

Miss Mildred Doty spent Saturday as the guest of her aunt, Mrs. Eugene Randall of Janesville.

George White and George Clarke were over Sunday visitors at Elkhor. Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Tyler of Harvard, spent Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Will Tyler.

Miss Bessie Flagg visited friends in Janesville Saturday.

The Rev. J. A. Jostad of Chicago, was a guest of Rev. Linnevald last of the week.

Mrs. E. S. Hatch visited friends in Madison Saturday.

Miss Gertrude Spencer of Minneapolis, and sister, Mrs. Sarah Richardson of Fargo, N. D. are week-end visitors at the home of their father, John Spencer.

Dr. W. W. Gill of Madison, was called in consultation with Dr. McClellan Saturday to see Mrs. J. C. Spillman, who was seriously ill.

Miss Anna Horn was a Janesville caller Saturday.

St. Paul, Oct. 4.—Hon. Andrew Chasfield, judge of one of the district courts, of this state, died today at Belleplaine.

Madison, Wis., Oct. 4.—Although the enrollment figures at the University of Wisconsin show a decrease in attendance this year, the normal schools have an increase of 914. These figures were announced last night by the new state board of education.

According to the announcement the university has an enrollment of 4,313, compared with 4,766 last year. There were increases in the colleges of letters and science, music, pharmacy, medicine and law.

Decreases in the departments of agriculture, home economics and engineering.

The eight normal schools have a total attendance this year of 4,123, compared with 3,611 last year. The largest increases in attendance were at Milwaukee and Stevens Point, the former of 1,061 and the latter of 105.

Every normal school in the state showed some increase. Enrollments at the separate normals are as follows: La Crosse, 514; Milwaukee, 888; Oshkosh, 534; Platteville, 519; Superior, 428; Stevens Point, 519; The Stout Institute, an enrollment of 335, an increase of 11 over last year.

Over 100,000 students of high school education in 1914, compared with 9,244 last year, a net increase of 325.

GERMAN STEAMER SOLD BY BRITISH PRIZE COURT AT AN INCREASED PRICE.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

London, Oct. 4.—The steamer Maritima, 5,336 tons, which was the North German Lloyd steamer Schlesien before she was captured as a British prize, recently brought at auction the price of $600,000, an increase of $275,000 over her price of six months ago.

A profit of $275,000 on a ship costing $325,000, indicates the extent of the present shipping boom.

A half year ago vessels were selling at a premium. But the present boom breaks all records in the history of shipping.

There have been other sales as remarkable of late. One steamer, which was bought for $225,000 at the beginning of the war, changed hands at $500,000. A Copenhagen steamer was last January bought for $234,000 and sold for $300,000.

These vessels are freighters and not passenger vessels. Except when let to the government on charters as military transports, passenger ships are not particularly profitable. But the exaggerated price for freighters, often far exceeding the cost price of superannuated ships, is due to the expectation of huge profits.

The clean sweep from the seas of German and Austrian vessels after the advent of four million tons left an unprecedented chance to rivals.

Natural countries, especially the Scandinavian countries, have had the advantage over England and France owing to their comparative immunity from submarine attacks.

CONFER ON MENACE OF CATTLE PLAGUE

Men Interested in Stock Raising From Points Throughout West and South—West Hold a Meeting.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Kansas City, Mo., Oct. 4.—Live stock commission men and representatives of the cattle industry from thirteen mid-western states met here today to consider the situation created by the foot and mouth disease. Each of the states represented is now said to be free from the disease, and an attempt will be made at the conference to agree on a plan by which the district will be safeguarded against another outbreak.

Joseph H. Mercer, livestock commissioner of Kansas, issued the call for the meeting, following a conference with the majority of the members of the livestock sanitary board of Texas, and Dr. D. F. Buckley, state veterinarian of Missouri.

The states officially represented were Kansas, Missouri, Texas, Iowa, Arkansas, Oklahoma, Nebraska, North Dakota, South Dakota, Montana, Wyoming, Colorado and New Mexico.

In addition any livestock man who wishes to attend the conference may do so.

"Although all these states are now free from the disease, one carload of cattle from an infected district might spread the epidemic over all of this territory," Mr. Mercer said, in calling the conference.

"In several states the disease has not been stamped out and recently there was another outbreak in Illinois, a district through which many cattle are shipped. Many livestock men do not believe it wise to risk the loss here in the middle west of millions of dollars by allowing shipments through or from infected territory."

Some of the states represented allow such shipments and others not. An attempt will be made to procure, through the livestock sanitary departments of the several states, a uniform quarantine against livestock shipments from or through any territory which is not entirely free of foot and mouth disease.

GOOD ROAD EXPERTS OF NORTHWEST MEET

Nearly Three Thousand Attend Big Convention Which Opens Today at Cedar Rapids, Ia.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Cedar Rapids, Ia., Oct. 4.—Nearly three thousand road building experts and enthusiasts were in attendance when the Northwestern Roads Congress opened here today for a four day session.

The congress, which is the most important of its kind in the northwest, is being held at the Hotel Grand Central, which is the headquarters of the delegates.

The morning session was occupied with the assembling of delegates, the first business session being set for four o'clock this afternoon.

W. Cooley of Minneapolis, president of the congress, will open the session and introduce Governor George W. Clark of Iowa, who will deliver addresses of welcome.

J. P. Keenan of Milwaukee, Wis., secretary of the congress, was in charge of the registration and the delegates will be assigned to their rooms.

Tonight a reception under the auspices of the Cedar Rapids Commercial club will be tendered the delegates.

Prominent among the speakers during the next three days will be D. D. Gash, president of the Illinois highway commission; D. E. Norris, chairman of the Iowa better roads committee; St. Paul, Minn., of the United States department of public roads; Colonel Frank Buffum of the Missouri highway commission; F. F. Anderson of Detroit, Mich., and John A. Hazelwood, president of the Wisconsin state highway commission.

The election of officers will be held Thursday.

Though the efforts of the congress various states have made substantial appropriations for road constructions. Reports on this subject are expected to be features of the convention.

WOMAN'S PAGE

SIDE TALKS

—By—
RUTH CAMERON

WHY TALK IS CHEAP

THE other day I watched a woman attempting to discipline her little son.

"If you don't stop throwing dirt I'll take you in the house and put you to bed," she said.

The boy began throwing dirt again within a minute.

"Albert, did you hear what I said?" demanded his mother.

Albert had heard of course. He had heard similar threats a great many times before. He was only five, but he knew that his mother was one of those people whose words are not to be taken at their face value. They are to be discounted.

He is used to her threats.

Albert's mother is continually threatening him with punishment. She makes all manner of dire promises.

"Why don't you put him to bed?" I asked, as Albert threw dirt the third time.

"It's so hot indoors," she confessed. "I don't want him cooped up in bed all afternoon."

Albert's mother comes from a very common fault. Speaking quickly and without thought, she says things she doesn't mean. Albert, at five, has no difficulty in analyzing that trait.

The fault is not a rare one. Far from it. Truly, talk is cheap. We make statements that our friends, unless they are unduly credulous, promptly discount, as Albert discounts his mother's.

Talking Because It's Too Much Bother to Think.

When we get angry we deliver ultimatum that are the forerunners, not of instant action, but of other ultimatums. We hear a great deal and believe very little. Someone has well said that we talk, because it's a bother to think.

It would be a fine and splendid thing if we should each of us say what we mean and mean what we say. It would automatically act against rash promises and rash statements. It would put the spoken word on par. It would put a curb on casual conversation that would do much to end chaos and confusion and quite a lively conversation as well—for some of us.

Don't Believe Everything You Hear.

The trouble is that we learn our lesson early. Like Albert. At five, Albert has learned a great truth. He has received an impression that will stay with him through life. He doesn't believe everything you hear.

I wonder what, if any, would be the effect of a decision on the part of the trustees of the coming generation to make, in dealing with the Alberts and the Albertas, a conscious and conscientious effort to keep the spoken word at par, by carefully considering what they wished to say and, having said it, standing to it, no matter how great the inconvenience?

Heart and Home Problems

Letters May Be Addressed To Mrs. Thompson, in Care of The Gazette.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am twenty-seven and I am engaged to a man of thirty. We have known each other for seven years and have been sweethearts off and on all that time. Although I have loved him since I was a child, I never loved any one except this man. I have loved him devotedly and when we quarrelled it has never broken my heart. If we are together every night for a week we do not get along a bit well and we quarrel over trivial matters. Everything he says gets on my nerves and everything I say gets on his. Of course I intend to marry him, no matter what happens, because I could not be happy if I didn't. The thing I want to know is whether you think that we can learn to get along when we see each other every day for years? We both try to be agreeable, but don't seem to know how. When we are together we get along beautifully.

Another Girl's Mother: The girl you speak of is not delinquent. All she needs is a little kindness and consideration. Her actions are, of course, unlikable, but they show a lack of training rather than intentional evil. Keep your children away from her, if you want to, but don't condemn the child.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) I am engaged to a young man and was to have been married next month. My mother died four weeks ago, and so now long should we postpone it?

(2) I am keeping house for my father and my fiancé lives in another town. Would it be proper for us to marry and for me to stay with my father and him to go back to his work?

(3) How long should I wear mourning? I am the only child and am twenty-two years old.

A READER:

(1) It will be all right to be married when you planned, if the wedding is small and you invite only the immediate family and friends.

(2) Sometimes young married couples do live apart, but it is very inadvisable. You can have someone come in and do the work or can board for a while. Then in a year or so when you and your husband have become adjusted, some plans might be made for your father to live with you.

(3) People are wearing mourning less and less all the time. You can discard it at all times and show due respect to your mother's memory.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) What will remove spots from the face after smallpox?

(2) Are a boy of eighteen and a girl of seventeen too young to keep steady company when the girl's parents do not object? S. W. A. R.

The electric needle will remove pits from smallpox. A young person usually outgrows them.

(2) A girl of seventeen is too young to keep steady company, but she is not too young to have two or three boy friends.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: My little girl, who is nine years old, is bothered with lice, which she caught from some school children. I did everything to get rid of them and finally did. The only thing that bothered me was that there were eggs in her hair, but no lice. I have asked different friends of some remedy, but can find nothing. It has been about five months since she last had lice and I surely thought they would dry up.

Nits could not possibly lie dormant for five months. Unless your little girl has lice too, the white particles you take for eggs are probably dandruff. Nits cling tightly to the hair and crack when they are broken between the finger nails. If she still has lice and nits, make a strong tea of larkspur and wash her head in it. At some drug stores you can get a larkspur tea for the purpose already made up.

Household Hints

A TIMELY SUGGESTION.

An inexpressible as well as a very acceptable Christmas gift is a box of flower seeds gathered from your own garden, done up in neat packets. Label each packet in which are some of the choicest seeds. These with a few acid bulbs, make a cheery Christmas box and give pleasure not only to the recipient, but all through the coming summer.

SIMPLE HOME REMEDIES

To Relieve an Extremely Sick Stomach when neither food nor medicine can be retained, beat up the white of an egg, add juice of an orange. If it cannot be drunk out of a glass, take it through a straw, such as used as soda fountain. This can be given with perfect safety to typhoid fever patients, especially with the orange juice.

Liniment: two drams oil of peppermint, two drams oil of sassafras, two drams liniment, two drams chloroform, alcohol to make four ounces. Shake well. Rub on chest, also used in cases of pneumonia—rub on chest, then apply hot cloths. To be used externally only.

To Relieve of the Bladder:—Take half teaspoon, strained honey and what soda will lie on the point of a knife. Mix together and swallow. Can be taken several times a day or once a day, according to need.

BIRTHDAY CAKE TRIMMINGS.

Almond meats can serve as wicks of the candles and being for fondant can be put around the hole to keep the candle firm.

These candles can be lighted if liked, as the oil in the almond will usually cause them to burn a short time.

For a little girl's birthday cake bake a round cake, put on a thick icing. Place tiny china dolls, one doll for each guest, all around the cake, facing outward. These dolls should be dressed in pretty crepe paper costumes and little cones made of wax paper slipped under the skirts will aid as supports.

If dolls are small and frosting thick, the dolls may not need support.

A cake decorated with faces, flat white with little round faces outlined on them in chocolate fruit coloring will delight the children. Ice cake before pulling on the mints.

THE TABLE.

Minestrone (Italian)—This nourishing soup is considered a meal in itself. Chop a slice of raw ham, three or four strips of bacon and a few stalks of celery. Cut a small cabbage in finger-length strips, and a carrot, onion and turnip into dice. Add half cup of large red beans (if dried beans are used, soak over night before cooking with other vegetables). Pour in a cup of sieved tomatoes and half cup of uncooked (ribbed) macaroni. Add two quarts water and a small soup-bone. Cook slowly for an hour, or more, season with salt and pepper, and pass grated Parmesan cheese, which is sprinkled over each portion as served.

Pie Crust That Will Not Soak—One heaping teaspoon flour, one tablespoon lard, one teaspoon baking powder, pinch of salt, two level tablespoons corn meal.

Wonder Pudding—Mix one cupful each of raw potatoes, carrots and granulated sugar, beef suet chopped very fine, seeded raisins, dried currants, one and one-half cups flour sifted with one rounding teaspoon baking powder, cinnamon, cloves, half teaspoon salt. Do not add any water or milk. Fill a greased pudding mold two-thirds full, cover securely with its own cover or oiled paper tied well over, and set dish in a kettle of absorbing water that reaches two-thirds to the top of the mold; cover kettle and cook three hours. This may be made a week ahead of time for serving, then reheated and served with either a lemon hard sauce or any preferred liquid sauce.

Grape "Spread"—Three pints of grapes; pulp, cook and run pulp through sieve, add mashed juice of two lemons, then add one pint water, eight cups granulated sugar, two oranges sliced thin, half pound seeded raisins. Cook until jellied. Be careful not to get too thick. Just before taking off add two cups chopped English walnuts (one pound).

Fresh Young Roast Pork—Have the fat about two inches thick, from a fresh ham, remove all fat, wash and dry; dip in egg (well beaten), then in cracker crumbs. Have a little butter in spider, fry meat for a minute, turn, sprinkle with salt and pepper, then take meat from spider and put in roaster. Do not put in any water. Roast slowly about two hours, then take from roaster, put on platter, pour all grease from roaster, and put in two cups of water; thicken as you do any gravy, only make it thicker.

Wash shrimps in cold water. Drain thoroughly and mix with one cup celery cut into small pieces, three sweet pickles (quarter and slice fine), eight olives chopped fine, one-half cup green (chopped), one cucumber (quarter and slice), one salt for five minutes, wash in cold

Married Life on $80 a Month

BY MRS. PA. LEONARD

Showing That It Is Not Always Easy to Live Happily on $80 a Month.

"Where has it all gone?"

"All gone?" You talk as if I had a fortune. You sit there and glare at me as if I were a criminal, because the pitiful salary you earn is not enough to get what we need."

Mrs. Sutter rose from the table with flushed face and snapping eyes.

"That's $80 a month with the cost of living soaring to the skies? Is it my fault that things are so high?" she continued.

"Other people live on $80 a month. You know nothing of managing; you buy flashy, cheap stuff with no wear in it."

"I am tired of living on potato skins and chicken necks. I want you to remember that I had $15 a week before I was married, and my board at home cost me nothing. I had something to spend, something to leave it here we have to pay for the table and clothe three people and pay rent on $5 more a week than it took to keep me alone."

She looked in at her husband, who sat with his elbows on the table, his head in his hands.

"You can't regret your sacrifice more than I do," he retorted. "What about my having something to spend? I had $20 per and no strings to it; a clean, bright room to rest in after the day's work. Oh, I had been able to make a live of it if you had decided to keep your job. People never know when they are well off."

John Sutter angrily shoved back his chair and stalked to the door. He paused to send a parting shot, holding the door open the while:

"Speaking of pressing, haven't I had a suit of clothes for two years and the time was when I was well dressed, too."

"I don't see that you did so much better in the saving line than I. You never put anything away out of your enormous salary. As it took all of it to support you, I fail to see why you are so excited when it doesn't support three comfortably?" sneered his wife as he turned on his heel and left the house. She heard the door shut with a bang.

Dropping her head on her arms, she sobbed, "I've lost my faith in God. The world is a great, black, hollow place full of mocking memories and vain regrets."

And little Jack! Poor little boy! Whenever he became of him? I could support myself if I were alone, but I can't do it and take care of him. Mother is dead; she would have helped me with him. Mothers are like that, and she loved him so."

She dried her eyes and looked at the clock.

"Nearly eleven. I must get into bed and pretend to be asleep when John comes. I simply can't face him."

She wound the clock, locked the door and removed the key, and taking one dreary look around the light and went to bed.

HEALTH TALKS

By WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

The Ear Marks of a Competent Nurse.

When there is a good nurse caring for the patient careful examination by the doctor elicits no crumbs under the covers, no medicine exhibits and no feeding utensils on the what-not and no suggestive odor of Oriental incense in the deadly sickroom atmosphere. Even the air is kept fresh.

The one sign of a competent nurse that has never failed is this: inside the patient's mouth clean, white, and the patient's tongue and teeth and we will tell you whether your nurse was well trained.

A good nurse is one who knows how to make her patient comfortable. Indeed, that is a nurse's whole duty. Many invalids don't know what real comfort is, because they have never employed a thoroughly trained nurse. The trained nurse has a way of growing on you; once you try one suspiciously kind of spoils you—always afterward you hanker after her whether you can afford her or not. She makes you so comfortable and sweet and clean!

Deliver us forever from the old, experienced nurse who fears to change the patient's sheets or nightgown for the poor thing that will "take cold." Who surrounds the patient with divers and sundry barriers to keep off drafts—the doctor has to thread his way to the bedside through a maze of quilts, shawls, towels and old clothes! Who talks of living tissue working "inward" fever, "burnings" and "worms" and "attacks of neurology!" Who is forever wanting "something to raise the gas!"

A good nurse never knows a single thing about what would be a good thing to take for this or that trouble. She has no remedies to suggest, having received no instruction in prescribing while she was in the hospital.

water, drain thoroughly. Peel one ripe tomato, chop fine; mix with salad dressing and allow to stand on ice until chilled. Arrange the heart leaves in the form of shells and put in each as much of the mixture as it will hold. Drop a teaspoonful of salad dressing on top and serve.

French Veal Soufflé—Heat two tablespoons butter, mix with two tablespoons flour until smooth, add one cup milk, let boil up, then add one cup minced veal, salt, pepper, nutmeg to taste, chopped parsley; stir in the yolks. Beat the whites to a stiff froth, add to meat, put in buttered baking dish. Bake twenty minutes. Serve at once.

"Shingles"—One and one-half cups granulated sugar, one-half cup butter, one teaspoon soda. Take a cup, put in soda, then butter, fill cup with hot water and pour this on sugar. Well, put in flour enough to make like cookie dough. Roll very thin, prick with fork, cut in squares, bake in the oven. They bake very quickly.

Ruby Cake—Two cups flour, two cups sugar, one cup shortening; mix as for pie crust, then add two cups sour milk, two cups chopped raisins, one teaspoon allspice, one teaspoon cloves, two level teaspoons soda dissolved in sour milk, pinch of salt. Bake in moderately hot oven in large tin. This will keep fresh a long time.

The Battle-Cry

"Hit's little Nash Watt!" exclaimed a surprised voice, using the diminutive which in the mountains takes the place of junior and stays with a man well on in life. The victim who had been designated to avenge the death of Noah Watt had been Noah Watt's younger brother.

Meanwhile the pursuing horsemen were gaining slowly on those that fled. The murder squad had failed and must bear back to Milt McBriar. If they ever got back, a narrative of frustrated effort. They were bitterly angry and proportionately desperate. So, as they clattered along the empty road, meeting no enemy whom they could shoot down in appeasement of their wrath, they satisfied themselves with raising their war cry for the benefit of the sleeping cabins.

A little distance beyond Fletch McNash's place lay a cross-trail by which they might find a circuitous way back over the ridge, but it was too steep and broken to ride. They could make better time on foot over the "roughs." So there they abandoned their mounts and plunged into the timber. When the pursuers came up with the discarded horses they realized that further effort in the nighttime would be hopeless. Yet, since the hearing flanks and pointing nostrils of the horses testified that they had been only a few minutes late, they took a last chance and plunged into the thicket.

There a single defiant shot, sent from a long way up the hillside, was their only challenge, and their volley of reply, fired at the flash, was merely a retort of hatred. But even in the isolation of the hills certain news travels on wings, and the morning would find every cabin dweller wearing a face of grim and sullen realization. The phrase which Fletch McNash had whispered to his boy would travel to the headquarters of every fork, and the faces of the women would once more wear the drawn misery of anxiety for their men.

CHAPTER VII.

It was into this newly charged atmosphere that Juanita Holland and her missionary guide rode in the morning mists.

Good Anse Talbott was in many ways an inadequate ally. He was too narrow and illiterate, but he was earnest.

At last the girl rode resolutely up to her escort's saddle-skirts and asked: "Brother Talbott, hadn't you better tell me what it all means?"

The missionary lifted a face that was almost haggard.

"Hit means," he said, with no idea of irreverence, "that Satan's got both underhills—an' God help this country."

Then he sketched for her the history of the feud and deduced conclusions from what they had both seen and heard.

She listened with a sickening heart until he changed the subject and told her that the Widow Everson, with whom she was to stop, had a sizable house where she would be comfortable.

At last the girl saw, still a long way off, a fertile little valley, where the corn seemed taller and richer than the scattered coves. There, like a tiny matchbox, on a high level near which the wall of mountain broke into a broad gateway, she could make out a house. It was not of logs, but of brick, and stood in an enclosure that looked more like the Blue Grass than the mountains.

"Does ye see you brick house nigh ther gap? Ther's Bad Anse's place, an' over thar agrost ther ridge, three mile away by crow-flight an' a half, ther's ride by ther roads, is whar Milt McBriar dwells. Ye kain't see hit from hyar."

It was almost sundown when they reached the house of the Widow Everson, and at sight of the woman standing at the fence to meet them Juanita's heart took strength. This house was not of logs, but of undressed boards, with gayly painted window and door frames of red, and although two days ago she would have called it mean, she had revised her views enough to regard it now as almost magnificent.

The widow dwelt here with her two sons, and the trio, by virtue of great diplomacy, had succeeded in maintaining a neutrality throughout the strife.

The comforts of the place were such as must serve to give contentment where teaming is arduous and the mail carrier comes twice a week, but cleanliness dwelt there and homely cheer of a sort.

Before they had yet entered the house the girl saw a horseman approaching with an escort of several men who carried rifles balanced across their pommels. They came from the east, and though Juanita did not know who they were, she recognized the central rider, himself unarmed, to be a person of consequence.

He was tall, and under his faded coat his rather lean figure fell into an attitude of well-muscled strength despite his fullness of years.

"Evenin', ma'am," said the newcomer. "No, I hain't a-goin' ter light. I jest heered that Brother Talbott was a-comin' over hyar, an' I wanted speech with him."

The missionary nodded. "All right, Milt," he said, and the girl knew, as she had already suspected, that here was a second of her chief enemies.

"I reckon ye all knows what happened last night," she heard him saying slowly. "Hit war a pity, an' I hears that ther Havesays are a-chargin' hit up ergin me. Ther's nat'ral-enough, I reckon. They 'lows that I'd walk plumb across hell on a rotten plank ter do 'em injury. Ef they stopped ter reason hit out, a spell they'd recollect that I went over thar ter Peril an' let a judge that didn't own his own soul an' a jury they had done packed, clear one of ther kinfolks fer killin' a cousin of mine—an' that I never raised a hand."

"I reckon they didn't hardly say no call ter finger that I was skeered of them. I done what I done because I wanted peace. I was fer lettin' ther law take his co'se, even when I knowed the cote war crooked as a drunkard's elbow."

He paused, and no one spoke, so at last he went on again.

"But little Nash Watt war young an' hot-headed. He could hardly see hit in ther light of wisdom, and he didn't come ter me fer counsel. So he jest went belt-spittin' over thar with some other boys that he overpersuaded—an' he didn't come back. I'm sorry. I was right fond of little Nash, but I hain't complain none. He started trouble an' he got hit."

Again the dark giant paused; then he came to his point. His voice was regretful, almost sad, but tinged with resignation.

"So little Nash is a-layin' dead down thar, an' no McBriar durstn't venture down ter fetch his body home."

He waved a hand toward the west, and the faces of his escort lowered. They seemed the faces of men who "durst" go anywhere, but their chief went on.

"I knowed, Brother Talbott, that ye saryes Almighty God, an' that thar hain't no word ye carries but what all men will listen ter ye, so I've done come ter ye in behalf of little Nash's maw, an' his wimmenfolks. I 'lowed I'd ask ye ef ye'd ride down thar and fetch home ther body?"

The missionary nodded, and though he was travel-stained and very tired, he said: "I'll start right now."

Then Milt McBriar continued: "An' ef ye sees fit, ye kin tell Anse Havesay that I hain't a-suin' fer peace, but that I hain't a-blamin' him nuther, an' that ef he wants ther true ter go on I'm a-willin' ter hev hit the way. I hain't holdin' no grudge on account of last night."

Juanita's eyes grew a little misty as she thought of that desolated cabin where a mother and sisters were grieving for the boy who had been "hot-headed." Even the sight of his older kinsman, who sat his horse with such composure, while his eyes wandered off to the purple haze of the far mountains, stirred in her an emotion of sympathy.

Of course she knew nothing of the ten acres of "bottom land" which were to be little Nash's when Cal Douglas should have ceased to breathe, nor how it was covetousness and cold heart that sent him out with his rifle in the night. She only heard the McBriars say, "I'm much obliged," and saw him turn his cavalcade east.

The tired missionary started his mule west again, and she herself followed the Widow Everson into the cabin which was for the time to be her home. When the widow left her she rummaged in her saddlebags and drew out a small leather case. She sat for a long while silent in her shuck-bottomed rocking chair, gazing wearily out at the west, where sunset fires were beginning to kindle, and where an old-rose haze was drowning over the valley and glowing more brightly in the twisting ribbon of a far-away stream. But her eyes came often back from the panorama out there to dwell a little wistfully on a photograph in the leather frame.

It was the picture of the man she had sent away. Had he himself been there just then, with her courage at ebb-tide, and had he stretched out his arms, she would have shaken her head wearily on abstract resolves and come into their embrace. But he was not there.

"I 'lowed I'd Ask Ye Ef Ye'd Fetch the Body Home."

In the quiet conversation of the Widow Everson and her sons Juanita found so much of the amusing that she had to school herself against too great an appreciation of their utterly unintentional humor. Though she was a "fetched-on woman" to be taken on probation, it was only a matter of hours before the family capitulated, as people in general had a fashion of doing under the spell of her graciousness and charm. Jerry Everson, whom men accounted surly, for the first time in years brushed his shaggy hat and remembered not to "hang it on the floor," and Sim Everson hid him into the misty woods at dawn and brought home squirrels for her first breakfast in his house.

In the forenoon of her first day she left the house and, crossing the tiny garden where the weeds were already growing tall and rank enough to hint of future ragged victory, she made her way by a narrow trail that led to the crest of the ridge.

Juanita was steering her course for a patriarchal poplar that sent a straight shaft heavenward at the rim of the crest, opening its verdure like a great fan, unfurled on a mighty parapet. She knew that up there she could look two ways across the divide, and that her battleground would be spread before her.

She looked to the east, and line after line of hills melted into the sky. She looked to the west, and there, too, they rose, phalanx on phalanx, to dissolve in a smoky haze that effaced the horizon. It seemed as if in a majesty of relentlessness they reached from sunrise to sunset, and so, as far as the locked-in life of their people went, they might.

She stood there a long while, and finally she saw, where for a space the road ran near the brick house, unsheltered by the woods, a straggling little cottage. At its front rode a stoop-shouldered man in whom, even at that far distance, she thought she recognized the missionary. Behind him came a few horsemen riding in two squads, and between the squads crawled a "jolt-wagon" drawn by mules. She knew that the Havesays were bringing back to the frontier the enemy's dead, and she shuddered at the cold reality.

It may have been three hours later that Good Anse Talbott rode up to the Widow Everson. When the girl, who had returned long ago from the crest, came out to meet him at the door, she found him talking there with Milt McBriar, who had also ridden up, but from the other direction.

"Anse Havesay 'lows," the preacher was saying, "that he has done fetched home ther body of little Nash Watt, an' that ther boy was shot ter death a layin' in ther l'avel a hundred paces from the winder whar Cal Douglas was a standin'!"

"I've done already acknowledged that," declared Milt in a voice into which crept a trace of truculent sullenness. The missionary nodded. "I hain't quite through yet, Milt," he went on evenly, and the girl who stood leaning against the door-frame, caught for an instant a sparkle of zealot earnestness in his weary eyes.

"Anse is willin' ter take yore hand on this truce. He's willin' ter stand pledge that ther Havesays keeps faith. But I'm a preacher of the Gospel of God, Milt, and I don't low ter be no go-between without both of you men does keep faith."

Milt McBriar stiffened resentfully, and his dark brows drew together under his hat brim. "Does ye doubt that I'll do what I says?" he inquired in a voice too soft for sincerity.

The missionary did not drop his steady and compelling eyes from the gaze direct. It was as if he were reading through the pupils of the other and searching the dark heart.

"I aims ter see that ye both starts out fair, Milt," he said, still quietly. "An' ter that end I aims ter admonish ye both on ther terms of this meetin' between ye."

For an instant Milt McBriar's semblance of calm reflectiveness slipped from him and his voice rose raspingly. "Did Anse Havesay learn ye that speech?"

Good Anse Talbott shook his head patiently. "No, I told Anse ther same thing I'm a-tellin' you. Neither Anse nor ther four men that fetches ther body will hev any sort of weapon about 'em when they comes acrost ther atle."

Ye've got ter give me yore hand that none of yore men hain't a goin' ter be armed. I'm a servant of ther Most High God." For an instant fire blazed in the preacher's eyes and his voice mounted with fervor. "Fer years I've done sought ter teach his grace an' his hatred of murder ter ther people of these hyar hills. When you two men shakes hands on this truce I aims ter be standin' by with a rifle-gun in my hands, an' ef I sees anything crooked I'm goin' ter use hit."

Grateful Mothers Tell Experiences

Mrs. T. Neurener, Eau Claire, Wis., writes: "Foley's Honey and Tar Compound cured my boy of a very severe attack of group after other remedies had failed. Our milkman cured his children of whooping cough. I recommend it to every one, as we know from our own experience that it is a wonderful remedy for coughs, colds, croup, and whooping cough. Mrs. D. Gillespie, Youngstown, O., writes: "My little girl had a severe cold and coughed almost continuously. I tried lots of cough remedies, but she didn't get any better. My sister recommended Foley's Honey and Tar Compound to me. The first dose I gave her relieved the inflammation in her throat, and after using one bottle the cough left her."

This sterling old remedy has been in use for years and is just as efficient for adults as for children. It gives relief for irritated and tickling throat, tight and sore chest, grippe and bronchial coughs.

The doctors were holding a consultation in the adjoining room, and the patient was anxiously awaiting the verdict.

"Do you think they'll find it neces-

"They haven't decided yet," said the nurse. "They're looking up your commercial rating now."

During a dinner party the question arose as to when a man should be privileged to kiss a young woman. "Don't you think," said one of the guests, "that when a young man buys grand opera tickets for a girl, spends eight dollars for a supper after the performance, and then takes her home in a taxicab, he should kiss her good night?"

"I certainly do not!" was the quick response of another of the guests, a confirmed bachelor.

"You don't!" exclaimed the other in surprise. "Why not?"

"Because," answered the bachelor, "it seems to me that he has done enough for her."—Exchange.

Potted Plants.

When potting plants, put a piece of coarse muslin over the hole in the pot before putting in the bits of stone and sod, which keeps the drainage good. The muslin prevents the earth from washing away.

Dress Up!

By LIVY S. RICHARD

Very wise was Shakespeare. You remember he wrote: "The apparel oft proclaims the man."

Judge for yourself if this isn't true. How do YOU "size up" a man the first time you see him?

Not by his Brains. It takes time for them to come to a show down.

Not by his Character. Character can't be snap shot.

You judge him, you have to judge him, first of all, by his appearance—and that means more than the hang of his jaw or the cut of his hair; it also means whether his clothes fit and whether he dresses in good taste.

Rockefeller, Wilson, Edison, any man whose money or reputation is made, can wear any old thing and folks will either not notice the slouchiness because thinking of what they know he has done or they will charge it up to the "whims of genius."

Incidentally, Wilson and Rockefeller are both good dressers.

But YOU, Mr. Average Man, haven't got the "genius" excuse. YOUR renown has yet to be accumulated. So it's very decidedly wise for you to put your best foot foremost.

I was in a great department store the other day watching the waiting line at the employment office. Dozens of eager youths longed to plant their feet on the first rungs of a career that would ladder them up among the Wanamakers, Marshall Fields, Filenes.

Who do you suppose lost out?

In every instance the fellow who looked shabby and dress-careless.

The employment manager told me afterward he didn't judge applicants' clothing by its quality.

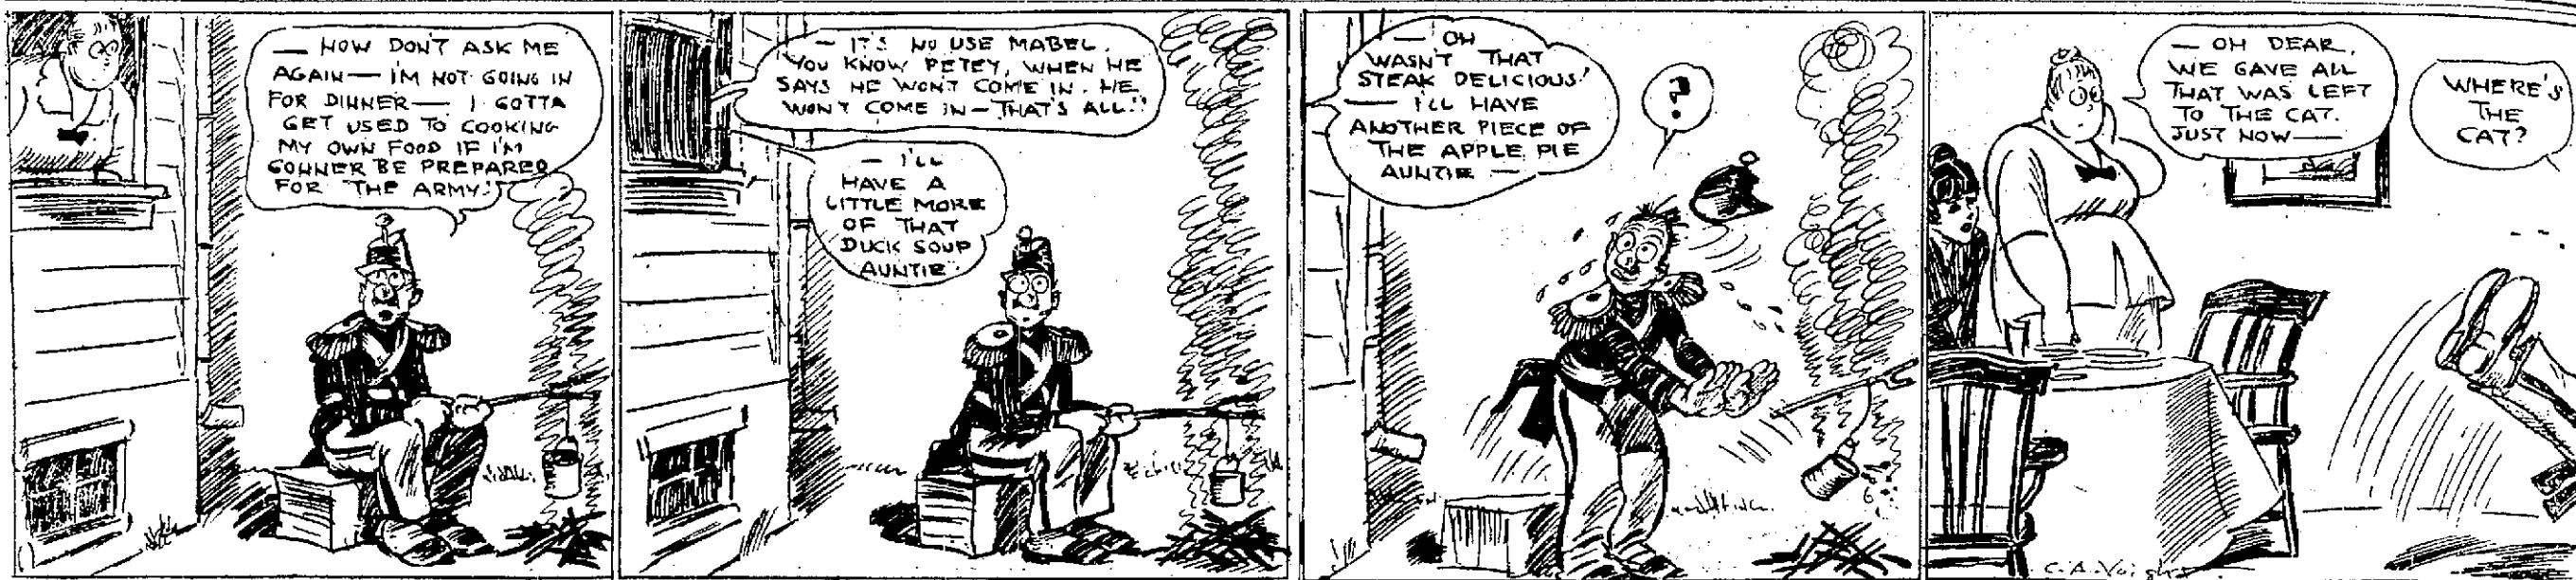

"It may be cheap, because when a fellow's poor he, of course, can't buy broad-cloth," he said. "But, it's got to be neat, clean and indicative of good taste. I can't take chances on a youngster who doesn't think enough of appearances to take pains not to look mussy."

So take a friendly tip, dear sir and brother.

CARDINALS GAINED REVENGE TROUNCING ROCKFORD MAROONS

Close Season With a Landed Victory Over Rockford Team By Score of 19 to 5.

Sunday afternoon the Janesville Cardinals closed their season this year with a victory over the Rockford Maroons, whom they had beaten in the first game of the season. There was only about two hundred on hand to witness the slaughter, and therefore not many disappointed over the poor exhibition of the Rockford Maroons, who practically the same team as was decorating the diamond Sunday—plain decorating is right—defeated the Cardinals early in the season by the long sided count of 19 to 5, when Cuddy Butters was on the slab.

Higgins, Rockford Three-Eye League pitcher, was on the mound against the Maroons, and when he had a safe lead to work on, after the third inning, he eased up on his fast ball and hookers and the game became a bit of a affair with much snelly hitting, mostly on the part of the visitors. Higgins, with his long form, just slammed the ball across, and when he willed the Maroons just went down in a row. He had a wicked drop ball that Rockford batter could come within a mile of touching, and fans here would like to see him work in earnest against the Maroons.

In the first inning the Cardinals hit up of Bird—and he was a high sailing bird—and tallied three, after a pitcher and walking around the sacks. Bird was safe on a lead by the first sacker, but ought to have been playing marbles, but was forced by Nelson. Slater was passed and Faxon hit. A wild pitch put the runners in a bunch and our old friend "Push" Miller came to bat. "Push" did not dare strike out or kick his chance because of the big hand he drew as he walked off the plate, so he swung the bat, and sneaked out a hit in the pinch.

The more Bird pitched the higher he went. He was a soothsayer and as usual with these fellows, he was as wild as the Wall Street market when war is declared. Control was not his middle name by a long ways. In the third inning came the rampage when the Cardinals scored the runs, was a succession of hits and walks, for Bird forced in two runs and the plate must have been on rollers for three got free tickets to first almost in a row.

When this inning was over "Push" Miller batted a grounder down third and with the runner on first, Nelson, Rockford shortstop, printed and swung the run which Mr. Miller so kindly gave them. Nelson scored on a sacrifice hit. The Cardinals came to bat with the allegation that they gave the Maroons these two runs to take home as souvenirs.

From this point the game dragged along, there being little exertion or life to interest the fans. Higgins would allow the first two men to hit and then force the next three to hit down easy chances. The best hitting feat of the day was the catch made by Baxter in center field, when he snatched off a low line drive which shut off two runs in the fifth.

The Cardinals chased five more runs home in the eighth on clean hits after two were down. This is the last game that the Cardinals will play this year.

of the trained pig owned by George Keeter than in the ball game.

Joe Nelson, the Cardinals' first baseman, came to bat with the announcement that while he was with Rockford Three-Eye a year ago he was the sensation for three weeks, everybody thinking he was a swindler. When they found out he was obtaining money under false pretenses and that he was from the Emerald Isle, his name of Nelson did not save him.

Council, who played a good game at short is a northern leaguer and was with Fargo. Baxter and Sherer are Three-Eye leaguers. Powers, the catcher, is from Madison.

Push Miller delivered in the pinch, but of course he had to spoil it all and boot a few at third.

In glancing over the Rockford line-up it is not hard to tell why so many of them were blunders. Ole and Hans were there in great numbers.

WHITEWATER NORMAL SCORES VICTORY OVER MARQUETTE

Whitewater, Wis., Oct. 4.—The Whitewater Normal defeated the Milwaukee Marquette academy here on Saturday 26 to 5, in one of the fastest games seen in a number of years.

The fighting spirit of the academy boys against their older and heavier opponents was gratifying to Coach Waldron. Con Hanley scored the only touchdown made against Whitewater this season.

The greatest ground gainer for the normal was Time after time he plunged through the Marquette line for big gains.

One of the plans for reorganizing the administration of the Western League is to move the headquarters from Chicago to Kansas City. One of the things required of Tip O'Neill's successor is that he must make his home in that town.

HISTORY OF WORLD'S SERIES IN BASEBALL

THIRTY-ONE YEARS HAVE ELAPSED SINCE THE FIRST INTER-LEAGUE GAMES.

AVERAGES OF PLAYERS;

Players of Red Sox Team Are Veterans While Moran's Phillies Are New Men on the Club.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

New York, Oct. 4.—Although thirty-one years have elapsed since the first battle for the baseball championship of the world was won by the Providence, R. I. "Grays" there were several years in which the struggle was not repeated so that the coming contest between the Boston Red Sox and the Philadelphia Nationals will be the twenty-fourth series to be played for the premier title of the diamond. The inaugural contest in 1884 was won by the Rhode Island team, then champions of the National league in three straight games from the Metropolitan, the standard bearers of the old American association of that year. Unavoidable lapses occurred in eight of the subsequent seasons. There was no competition for the world's honor in 1891 or 1893. There was also a five year lapse from 1898 to 1902 inclusive, but in 1903 the Boston Americans beat the Pittsburgh Nationals five games to three, the following year's championship was claimed by the Boston Red Sox by default as the New York National league club would not permit its players to leave to play the American league champions.

1905 Saw Change.

In 1905, however, the two major leagues arrived at an understanding after the matter had been thoroughly discussed during the winter months, and the world's championship competition was played on a solid basis. The National Commission assumed control of the annual series and made it compulsory for the pennant winning clubs in each league to have their teams meet at the close of the playing season every year, the world's title to go to the club winning four out of seven games. Rules were accepted which provided a mission which governed everything connected with the post-season battles. Arrangements were completed regarding the disbursement of prize money to the winning players, and losing players, the club owners and the National Commission and to the merest detail everything was done to the satisfaction of everybody interested.

Games Resumed.

Under these new conditions the post-season games were resumed and they have been played every year regularly since 1905. In the fall of that year the New York Giants defeated the Athletics of Philadelphia four games to one and scored their first winning of the world's title under the new regime. The rival Chicago clubs had the issue between them in 1906; Comiskey's White Sox winning the honors by four games to two. The Detroit Tigers won the American League pennant for the next three years in succession but failed to add the world's title to their string of victories as they were beaten in the post-season battles of 1907 and 1908 by the Chicago Cubs and the following year they lost to Pittsburgh, when the Pirates nailed both the world's championship and National league pennants to their mast. Connie Mack and his Athletics were dominant factors in the two following years, they scored a four to one victory over the Chicago Nationals in 1910 and in the 1911 series they squared their defeat by the Giants in 1905 by taking McGraw's players in to camp four games to two in the battle for the world's title.

Then followed the great eight game series between the Boston Americans and the giants. Probably for a long time to come 1912 will be remembered as the "banner year" as in addition to a tie game the Red Sox players, several of whom are still in the Boston line-up, went the limit and forced Manager McGraw to a four to three defeat. Philadelphia's Connie Mack and the Athletics scored a third world's victory in 1913 with the Giants again losers, the New York team winning only one game out of five. Last year the Boston Braves made a clean sweep in the post-season games taking four straight from the Athletics after a sensational sport and final victory in the National league race.

Red Sox Veterans

Eleven of the players who helped win the world's series for the Boston Americans from the New York Giants in 1912 will be found among the eligibles on the roster of the Red Sox in the coming series with the Philadelphia Nationals for this year's world's championship. When the opposing teams are lined up the catching corps for the Boston club will be decidedly the same as in 1912 and the men, Speaker, Lewis and Hooper, who will take care of the outfield will fill the same positions that they occupied when the Red Sox were returned world's champions three years ago.

Changes, however, will be marked in the pitching staff and the infield. Wood and Collins are the only survivors of the twirlers who won the honors in that famous eight game series while Gardner will be the only regular left for the defense of the infield. Although former shortstop Wagner will be available in case Barry's indisposition may prevent his playing the second bag.

Phillies Recruits.

In striking contrast to the veteran line-up of the Boston players Manager Moran's aspirants for the world's title and honors have been gathered together from widely separated districts during the past two years. Their great fight during the season just closing, however, has clearly demonstrated their combined strength and playing ability. Subbed with the spirit and determination that they showed throughout the season and by which they brought the National League pennant for the first time to Philadelphia, the men can be depended on to hold their own against their more seasoned competitors for the world's championship.

For the purpose of comparing the playing strength of the two teams the following statistics may be helpful.

Illinois and Minnesota Show Great Strength in Conference—Is Wisconsin Strong or Lawrence Weak?

(By Strikes.)

Practice games turned out as big surprises in six or seven important football games on Saturday all the way down from the Yale defeat by Virginia to the fact that little Northwestern college of Watertown, held Beloit to a scoreless tie. In the conference results went true to form with the exception of the Wabash-Purdue game, and Wisconsin showed that she was going to be a factor in the conference race, if they continue to improve.

The defeat of Yale cannot be taken seriously as meaning that the Blue will not improve during the later season, although they were outplayed in every stage of Saturday's game by little Virginia. The defeat, however, will rob much of the interest in the race of the big three—Harvard, Yale and Princeton. Harvard, Saturday, was forced to play their best early season football to beat the Massachusetts Aggies by the score of 7 to 0. Rutgers held the Tigers to a score of 10 to 0, showing that all three of these eleven need hard work during the coming week.

Wisconsin had a marathon race with Lawrence, winning by the count of 32 to 0, but the score does not really indicate whether Wisconsin is stronger or Lawrence unusually weak. It is probably a combination of both. One thing sure, the Badgers have enough material, having a host of players of worthy ability. Ray Edler, the Janesville halfback, will not be out for the squad this year, this fall being his last year in thearsity. Next year he may be considered serious as a material for the Badger backfield.

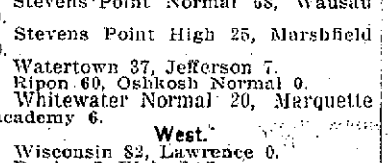

Illinois conference champs, showed early indications of annexing another title as the Illini backs ran wild with the Haskell Indians, winning 36 to 0. All considered the Illini looked stronger than last year and their backfield, led by a rival of Illinois, had "picking" in North Dakota and won 11 to 0. Indiana looks weak, barely defeating De Pauw by a touchdown. Notre Dame and Iowa both had easy victories.

INFIELDS ARE EVEN IN WORLD'S SERIES

(By George R. Holmes.)

New York, Oct. 4.—All things considered, the Red Sox and Phillies will go into the coming world's championship series as even as to infields. Fred Luderus' terrific hitting is somewhat offset by the superior fielding ability and all around finish of Jack Barry, and so far as the rest of the infields are concerned, it appears to be about a draw—judging solely from the way ability is reckoned in college figures.

There is no difference worth speaking of in the combined batting and fielding averages of the two infields. They have been playing about around a .360 gait, and the two leading averages hover round close to .360.

"WE GOT A MAN JUST THE SAME"

We didn't intend to make the mistake but typographical errors do occur. But in spite of the fact that we printed the wrong initials for Mr. Arnold he writes that he got a man just the same.

CARDINAL GIBBONS WANTS WASHINGTON A CATHOLIC CENTER

Prelate Has Plan for Locating Prominent Religious Schools of Various Orders at National Capital.

Baltimore, Md., Oct. 4.—Realizing the possibility of an invasion of the great Italian capital, the home of his church, and deploring the terrible and demoralizing effect of the war on the once magnificent educational centers of Europe, Cardinal James Gibbons, Archbishop of Baltimore, has conceived a plan by which he hopes to reach the zenith of his remarkable achievements during his long career of usefulness.

Cardinal Gibbons.

fulness to the Catholic church in making from an educational viewpoint, Washington, D. C., the Rome of America.

For possibly a whole decade the venerable prelate has dreamed of uniting a number of the more important American ecclesiastical colleges as units of a great university, but in view of the war's devastation in Europe his plan has taken on vaster proportions. Cardinal Gibbons now plans to establish in a beautiful section of the American capital a center of religious education that will bring together not only the higher colleges and seminaries as departments of the Catholic University of Brookland, D. C., with unlimited advantages for students, but representative schools embracing practically every order and society comprising the Catholic priesthood.

The great material benefit expected to be derived from this plan will be a standardization of theological instruction, which at present, as is generally known, differs in some minor details in the various bodies. A uniform course in theology has long been the aim of the cardinal.

Perhaps if the great scheme becomes a reality the archdiocesan office will be transferred to the capital, though it is known that as long as the cardinal lives it will remain in Baltimore.

For several years most of the clergy in the Catholic church have been steadily increasing their representation at the Catholic University. The faithful have their own departments, their own buildings and their own faculty. Likewise the Marists are strongly represented, as are the Dominicans, Franciscans, Sulpicians and priests of the Holy Cross.

These orders are very strong throughout the entire country and their principal headquarters are scattered in various sections. Their steady increase in numbers at Brookland, however, is significant and it is not at all improbable, after a few more definite moves are made, that Washington will eventually become the center of their activities, their principal homes becoming branches.

The Sulpician Seminary of St. Mary, one of Baltimore's most historic institutions, and incidentally the alma mater of the cardinal, goes the distance of having taken the first definite step in recent years toward the realization of Cardinal Gibbons' most cherished dream. Through their fathers in Washington, it has become known that the order has negotiated for the purchase of an extensive tract of land exactly opposite Gibbons' Memorial Hall, a recent imposing addition to the Catholic University.

Though their plans have not been fully announced, it is believed the members of St. Mary's faculty intend within a few months to begin preparations for the removal of a large majority of the seminary students to the Catholic University grounds, where the students may have greater opportunities for higher education. Throughout the necessary adaptation of the seminary to the new location, the students will be able to continue their studies at the university, where the advantage of association, which means a more thoroughly cooperative plan of instruction.

With St. Mary's Seminary will also move to Washington, it is understood, St. Joseph's, now an annex of the Baltimore institution, where candidates are trained for the priesthood among the Catholic population of the United States. It is not improbable either that St. Charles' College, at Baltimore, and the college conducted by the Sulpicians, and in reality a preparatory school for the seminary, will become a sort of high school addition to the Catholic University.

The next and probably most important step in the centralization plan is looked for from the Jesuits. From a number of scholars at the Woodstock (Md.) College it is understood that there have been numerous discussions on the project of having that institution become a unit of the Catholic University. The Jesuits as yet have not entered into the general scheme of uniting the universities, though they have let it be known that they are by no means averse to the plan, but rather favor it. With the removal of the Woodstock College the first move would be made, and its example would probably be followed without delay by numerous other branches of the order. The assemblage of these branches would create a larger representation in Washington than at the headquarters proper in Fordham, New York.

MONTEREY TEAM DEFEATS BLUES BY SCORE OF 11-10

Sunday the Monterey team again defeated the Blues by a score of 11 to 10 in a close twelve inning battle. William Rogers, the iron hurler, pitched for the Monterey, and was aided by Schumacher, caught, E. Hill and Byrne were the battery for the Blues.

Terry Turner, who is playing his fourteenth season with the Cleveland American team, is one of the great players of the game to whom not much attention is paid because he is with a losing aggregation. In better company Turner would be a shining star. He puts up an equally good game at second, short or third. He is playing the position now, and is playing it brilliantly.

INFIELDS ARE EVEN IN WORLD SERIES

960. Comparisons, however, are held to be somewhat odious ever since the late lamented Braves walloped Cornelius McGillicuddy's $100,000 infield and useless pitching staff.

There always is one thing that trips up the dope, and literally spills the beans. It can't be reckoned on, because there are no figures on it. But the series evened out, the totally unlooked for individual star that crops out in every world series. Once upon a time it was Frank Baker. Then John Bush came along, and last year's long lean Hank Gowdy, whom fate had buffeted around the baseball world for a long time.

Gowdy, on dope, didn't stand a chance with the incomparable Babe Ruth this time last year. There were few places outside Boston's classic boundaries where the name would have been recognized on the lips of a great university, but the music of the cats on the backyard fences was suspiciously drawn into the semblance of the lanky catcher's moniker. Hank had dubbed along all summer, lining around 210. Yet when the big test came it found him slugging .545 under the most supremely difficult conditions possible. Nobody had figured on him.

And here come several players with the Red Sox and Phillies whom nobody is figuring on. In the first place there are no figures. So many things are happening in a series that it makes dope practically useless. Stars can go bad, as did Chief Bender in the series with the Braves last year; some luck kid may turn into a plumb line, as happened to a number of things can happen.

New York critics are paying a lot of attention to the difference between the two fields, and are of the opinion that the Phillies, at the advantage goes to Philadelphia. The Philly field is much shorter, which accounts to some extent, for the great number of homers garnered by Gabby (cravath) this season. Very few, or practically no balls are knocked out of the Boston park. Gabby is reported to have that fence distanced properly and is habitually sticking one over the grass any time, in a close battle, with a man on, that would just about wreck somebody's championship hopes. It is an undeniable fact that nearly all of Cravath's homers have been knocked while the Phillies were at home.

It looks like a remote factor before the series, but it would certainly assume elegant proportions if it ever happened.

CHICAGO "WHALES" WIN FED PENNANT BY TIGHT FIGURE

Tinker's Whales Win Closest Flag Race in History as Result of Sunday's Games.—All Chicago Teams Win.

Chicago, Ill., Oct. 4.—In the tightest league race ever staged the Chicago Federals on Sunday won out Pittsburgh in the second game of a double header, after having dropped the first game, and thereby won the pennant.

Darkness had set in long enough to permit the Chicago team to take the title. "Three runs in the sixth inning of the second game settled the ownership of the flag.

The race was in doubt until the final game was played, as for weeks past there had been a constant shifting of positions on the part of Pittsburgh, Chicago and St. Louis, the Missouri city not being eliminated until on Saturday, when a defeat by Kansas City put it out of the running.

The three teams finished with only a little over three points separating them.

In the first game Chicago seemingly had the game and the pennant won, having led three runs up to the ninth inning, when with two out, the visitors showed three rallies across, tying the score. Pittsburgh won in the eleventh with another rally.

In the unfortunate circumstance for the home team, with Mowrey on base as a result of a pass, Lewis knocked a long fly between center and left and Mann and Zwilling both attempted to make the catch, colliding and Zwilling dropped the ball. Mowrey scored.

Double by Berghammer and a single by Wickland scored Lewis and Berghammer. The winning run came in the eleventh after being struck out. Knetzer singled, went to second on Berghammer's out and scored from second on Wickland's Texas leaguer.

Knetzer's half off hit at the beginning of the ninth inning, only one hit was made off his delivery.

Chicago won the second game and the pennant in the sixth inning on a single, a sacrifice and two doubles, followed by two more singles, netting the only three runs of the contest. The game was called after Pittsburgh's half of the seventh on account of darkness.

The crowd, variously estimated at from 25,000 to 28,000, then swarmed over the field, and the next fifteen minutes were occupied with a cushion and hat throwing contest.

Vaughn Wins.

Chicago, Ill., Oct. 4.—Vaughn pitched the Chicago Cubs to a 7 to 2 victory over St. Louis on Sunday in the final game of the season, the result giving the locals fourth place in the league standing, while the visitors were dropped to sixth place by virtue of Pittsburgh's victory over Cincinnati.

Salles was knocked out of the box in the second inning, when two errors, a pass and three hits came together, yielding four runs.

McDonalds pitched and was hit for three runs in the same inning.

Sox Win Last.

Chicago, Ill., Oct. 4.—Chicago made a clean sweep of the series with St. Louis when they won their final game of the season on Sunday, 10 to 2. The locals hit Hamilton opportunely, Welch and J. Collins each making home runs, eighth inning, when he weakened and gave way to Russell, who held the visitors safe.

FAREWELL BANQUET FOR FRED CLARKE TONIGHT.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Pittsburgh, Oct. 4.—Fred Clarke, for sixteen years at the bat, the Pittsburgh Pirates, will be tendered tonight one of the finest tributes that has ever been given to any ballplayer.

The St. Louis league has arranged a farewell banquet in his honor which will be the largest ever held in the Smokey City. It will be Pittsburgh's tribute to the retiring manager. Some of the biggest men in the baseball world have promised to be on hand and the application for places poured in so fast that the committee was compelled to limit the covers to five hundred.

The committee has kept its plans as to the gift that is to be presented to Clarke a profound secret.

Clarke came to Pittsburgh in 1900 and had directed the Pirates, since that time. He has won four pennants and one world's championship. As a player Clarke ranked with the best. In twenty-two years in the big league he has a batting average of .325. Clarke was essentially a player-manager and since he stopped playing himself in 1911 it has been a rather hard struggle for him. It has always been hard for him to sit on the bench. The only member of the team that he brought to Pittsburgh will be left in St. Louis.

PROPOSE A LEAGUE FOR BASKETBALL IN STATE CITIES

Officials of Company E. Team of Fond du Lac Start Move for a State Circuit.

Initial plans for the organization of a basketball league of Wisconsin city teams are being considered and early indications point to the fact that the city of Fond du Lac will see the Lakota (Cardinal) team entered in the league. At Fond du Lac, the officials of the crack Company E. team made the first move toward the organization of such a league and so far the proposals have met with a ready response.

The cities named by the Fond du Lac men are Sheboygan, Fond du Lac, Neenah, Oshkosh, Appleton and Janesville, with two teams in Milwaukee, George Caldwell, manager of the Lakota last year, in their record breaking season, ended the league plans but expresses an opinion that Beloit should be represented in order to create more interest in southern Wisconsin as the other cities are all in the center part of the state. All of the northern cities are good basketball cities, having teams last year, that drew large crowds at their schedule of games. Milwaukee was never a strong city for basketball as compared to the others and not until last year did the Cream City ever have a good basketball five.

A meeting will undoubtedly be held within the next few weeks to consider the organization of the league at which the representatives of the various cities will be present. Members of the Fairbanks-Morse baseball team of Beloit stated recently that it was probable that the Fairbanks-Morse company would take up basketball this winter for amusement for their employees, on the same principle as baseball was introduced this summer. State Valley pitcher for the Fairies is a former player on the Belvidere team and the Lake City could easily produce an excellent team.

There has been some talk of organizing a league of southern Wisconsin and northern Illinois teams, but this movement has not borne results as yet. The northern teams ranged in the proposed Wisconsin circuit have the best basketball teams in the west and there is no team in northern Illinois who can class with them.

Amusements

(Notices furnished by the theatres.)

AT THE APOLLO.

"The Woman Next Door" is a romantic drama, founded on the stage play of that name by Owen Davis. In none of her other productions has Miss Irene Fenwick been given such a splendid opportunity to display those powers which have made her one of the greatest stage stars in America. Her work in "The Woman Next Door" is said to be one of the rarest and most beautiful examples of character portrayal in the annals of film play.

The role of the divorced actress, Jenny Gay, is especially suited to her peculiar temperament and talents. The story is familiar to theatre goers, but one of the big Broadway successes of the past few years. The picture play will be seen at the Apollo Tuesday.

AT THE APOLLO.

Ina Claire in "The Puppet Crown." Miss Ina Claire, famous as "The Quaker Girl," and now appearing in the principal female role in "Ziegfeld's Follies," at the New American Theatre, New York, is the star of the Lasky Feature Play Company's production, "The Puppet Crown," from the romance of the same name by Harold MacGrath. It will be released through the Paramount Picture Corporation on Wednesday at the Apollo.

In the cast with Miss Claire are Carlisle, Christian, Lynn, Harlowe Carpenter, John Abraham, George Gebhardt, Tom Forman, Misses Cleo Ridgley and Marjorie Daw.

AT THE APOLLO.

Marguerite Clark Tonight.

Kitty Kelly of the Tribune has the following to say of "Seven Sisters," in which Marguerite Clark will be seen in the Apollo tonight.

"It is so all around good that it is rather baffling to try to put a finger on any special spot and say 'Herein lies the excellence.' For the excellence doesn't stay put anywhere; it is all pervading.

"At the start the tale is a very good one for the screen, offering a multitude of opportunities for subtle comedy character work in the developing of the theme of chronological matrimonial precedence prevailing in the Hungarian home of many daughters.

"And of the opportunities the players take royal advantage. Miss Clark isn't the only good one; the mother, the inkeeper, the servant, the different lovers and the different sisters, even the little ones, do their bits with surprising adequacy.

"The outdoor vistas are wonderful pictures, especially when set with Miss Clark, and the interiors are exquisite.

"If you have things on your mind while watching it, you forget you have a mind and go living right along in that quaint Hungarian village, so realistic in the playing and absorbing the tale."

AT THE PRINCESS.

New Universal Feature Programs Start Tonight.

The Princess Theatre announces that beginning today the Universal motion picture program will be featured at that theatre. Many of the most prominent stars of the screen will be presented and all the big features which Universal is so fully capable of producing.

Tonight they present beautiful Rosemary Theatricals, a Harry Myers dramatic innovation, "The Prize Story," King Baggott and Jane Gail will be seen in a farce comedy, "The Riddle of the Silk Stockings," also Max Asher in a mirth provoker, "A Duel at Dawn."

AT THE MAJESTIC.

Bessie Barriscale in "The Cup of Life." Tomorrow.

There are so many fine qualities about "The Cup of Life" that it deserves high praise. Within the whole body of the work is visible the common ideal toward which all high-class producers are progressing, an ideal that really emerges from the united efforts of many minds. The one of the Cup of Life is a reaction against theatricalism and more than that—it is a motion picture drama pure and simple, untrammelled by stage traditions and practices. Unlike the stage presentation, that of the screen is close to life, to contemporary life in theme. It is not built upon French designs, but concerns what is going on now and here.

The main story is that of a proud and beautiful young girl in humble circumstances. She and her common-place sister work in a store for small wages and live in an East Side tenement. The simpler and plainer sister has a "regular fellow" and becomes engaged to him. He brings along a chum, a primitive young tough of the dirty-fingered type, and tries to make it a party of four, but the whole environment is so revolting to the high-spirited girl that it turns her sick.

Across the narrow court from her window she can see a haggard mother slaving over the tub to keep her children from starving. Behind the fire escape are huddled haggard children, stifling in their efforts to breathe. She is overwhelmed by the prospect of marriage to a man who is a station, but she dashes herself against the restraints of environment in vain until the back door to a life of beauty is offered to her.

The story develops into one of the very strongest appeal, and the sympathetic acting in Miss Barriscale and the rest of the cast do it full justice.

The Netherlands.

The kingdom of the Netherlands dates back to 1815, when the congress of Vienna granted its national independence under the rule of the House of Orange. At that time the provinces known as the Austrian Netherlands were united to Holland, but there was little sympathy of nationality, religion or racial inheritance between the two sections of the newly-formed kingdom.

REPORTS ON DEATHS DURING LAST MONTH

Cancer Causes 138 Deaths During Last Month—More Than Any Other Communicable Disease.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Madison, Wis., Oct. 4.—More deaths were reported to the state board of health during the month of September from cancer than from any other single communicable disease. There were 138 deaths from this cause during the month, exceeding typhoid fever, tuberculosis which is usually exceedingly high, by 21.

The deaths from violence show that eight were the result of automobile accidents, four from gun shot wounds; seventeen from railroad accidents; 36 from suicides, 33 from accidental drowning, eight from horse accidents, six from scalds and six from burns and scalds. One death was reported from infantile paralysis, one from smallpox and one from polio.

For the month of September there were 1,732 deaths reported. This represents an annual death rate of 7.3 per thousand estimated population. The rate is exceedingly low, due in a large measure to the comparatively large measure to the comparatively few deaths reported from infantile diarrhea, a disease which is ordinarily very prevalent during the month of July, August and September.

The northern counties reported 303 deaths, with a death rate of 6.7 per thousand; the central counties 301 deaths with a rate of 9.2 per thousand, and the southern counties 559 deaths, with a death rate of 8.8 per thousand. During the month the death of 257 children under one year of age was reported. There were 70 deaths among children from one to four years of age and 61 deaths of persons 65 years or over.

Important causes and the number of deaths from each disease are as follows: Pulmonary tuberculosis, 117; other tuberculosis, 17; typhoid fever, 3; diphtheria, 7; scarlet fever, 3; measles, 3; whooping cough, 15; pneumonia, 77; diarrhea, under two years of age, 33; meningitis, 21; influenza, 2; puerperal septicemia, 4; cancer, 138 and violence, 150.

Granada.

Granada was at one time part of the Roman province of Roetia, but after the Arab invasion it became an independent Moorish kingdom. It was the last possession of the Moors in Spain, who tearfully gave up their country to their conquerors, Ferdinand and Isabella of Spain, in 1492.

MEETING FOR WAR HAS BEEN CALLED BY FIVE CITIES

Madison, Oct. 4.—Governor Philipp received an invitation today to attend the midwest conference to be held at Davenport, Ia., October 14 and 15, at which the principal discussion will be "Preparedness for War."

The tri-cities of Davenport, Rock Island and Moline have called a Midwest Conference on Preparedness. One hundred and eleven members of congress from nine states have been invited to spend October 14th and 15th in the Tri-Cities as the guests of that five-borough community. All of the expenses of the visiting members of congress, including railroad fare, will be paid. Their hosts will be the commercial organizations of Davenport, Rock Island, Moline, East Moline and Bettendorf.

Realizing that the calls upon the purse of the average member of congress are many, the committee raised an adequate fund with which to defray the expenses of all senators and representatives who attend the conference. Their hosts will be at their homes until they return.

A banquet, organized by the leading business men of the five cities, will be tendered to the visiting statesmen. The committee of invitation (that has been arranged for inspection of the Rock Island Arsenal, government's great inland armory).

In arranging for this visit, the people of the Tri-Cities have an entirely unselfish object in view. They believe that when members of congress see this big plant, in which the government has $15,000,000 invested, and realize that its immense storehouse has always been in favor of adequate preparation for national defense that this proposition has not been considered of vital interest and importance by the people of the middle west.

Their location in the heart of the country, hundreds of miles from the nearest national boundary, has given them a feeling of security which has made it difficult for them to understand the "Big Army" and "Big Navy" agitation that has continued for years.

It occurred to the Greater Davenport Committee, which took the lead in this matter, that this was the psychological moment for a conference by members of congress representing the nine great middle western states referred to on the subject of preparedness, which unquestionably will be the all for solution during the coming season.

Theater of the Tri-Cities is an organization of fifteen, three to four members from each of the cities of Davenport, Rock Island, Moline, East Moline and Bettendorf. It was organized and the First National Bank of Davenport, who represented the Second District of Iowa in Congress for three terms, was elected president of the committee and Irving C. Norwood, executive officer of Davenport's promotional organizations, was made secretary.
